Teachers Get Free Amusement Park Admission this Weekend

Teacher Appreciation Weekend and Community Cares

Waterbury, CT – Quassy Amusement and Waterpark doubles down on its ongoing commitment to the community this weekend, May 4-5. The weekend will feature Teacher Appreciation weekend, honoring the hard work and dedication of educators, alongside the continuation of the Quassy Cares Neighbors in Need initiative.

As a gesture of gratitude, all teachers are invited to enjoy free admission to Quassy Amusement and Waterpark throughout the weekend upon presenting their valid school ID or other documentation verifying their employment at a school.

In addition to the free admission for teachers, teachers can bring a guest for only $17 with a donation for Quassy Cares. Guests can donate one non-perishable item or home cleaning products as part of the Quassy Cares Neighbors in Need initiative, which aims to support Acts4Ministry and local communities by providing essential supplies to those in need.

"Teacher Appreciation Weekend is our way of recognizing the incredible contributions of educators who play a vital role in shaping the future," said Eric Anderson, Quassy's President. "Combined with our Quassy Cares Neighbors in Need initiative, we are proud to offer a weekend filled with fun, gratitude, and community support."
